DETAILED ACTION

Respons to Amendment

1. Applicant's amendments and accompanying remarks filed 2/3/03 have been entered and carefully considered. Applicant's amendment is found to overcome the prior art rejection set forth in the previous action because, Tillotson does not seem to teach a permanently tacky adhesive. Despite this advance, Applicant's amendment is not found to patentably distinguish the claims over the prior art and Applicant's arguments are not found persuasive of patentability for reasons set forth herein below.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

3. Claims 7-10 and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Andersson (5460855) in view of Brown et al (5413829) and Tillotson (4743330).

Anderson is concerned with the creation of woven wallpaper; however, Anderson is completely silent with respect to a method of hanging the wallpaper. Therefore, the invention of Anderson cannot achieve its full utility without supplemental teachings from the prior art explaining how to hang the wallpaper.

Brown is concerned with an improved method of hanging wallpaper (col. 1, lines 5-31). Brown teaches laminating a permanently tacky pressure sensitive adhesive used to adhere the wallpaper to a surface (col. 5, lines 50-60). Brown's pressure sensitive adhesive can be applied in hot melt form (col. 8, lines 37-43). It would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art to utilize the adhesive taught by

Art Unit: 1771

Brown in the wallpaper of Andersson. Such a modification would have been motivated by the desire to allow easy application to the wall and also easy removal and adjustment for repositioning (col. 6, lines 33-40).

As previously set forth, Tillotson teaches an improved method of applying adhesives to woven fabrics. It would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art to utilize Tillotson's application method. Such a modification would have been motivated by the desire to avoid wasting adhesive.

Applicant argues that the barrier layer of Andersson is continuous and not the instantly claimed discontinuous layer. To clarify, the barrier layer of Andersson is irrelevant to this rejection. Andersson teaches the barrier layer to be between the decorative layer and the substrate (col. 4, lines 13-21). Therefore, the barrier layer would have no effect on the adhesive applied to the back of the substrate, which adheres the fabric of Andersson to a wall.

Applicant argues that Andersson fails to teach a self-adhesive wallpaper. However, Anderson teaches that "any" wallpaper can be used (col. 3, lines 6-9). The examiner notes that adhesives, by far, are the most commonly used method of applying wallpapers. Brown further teaches the use of adhesive for applying substrates to surfaces.

Applicant argues that Tillotson discloses a carpet and not a wallpaper. Applicant appears to be arguing that the references are drawn to non-analogous art. However, the primary reference, Andersson, teaches that floor coverings (carpet) and wall coverings (wallpaper) are equivalent (col. 1, lines 10-30).

Applicant argues that the adhesive taught by Tillotson is squeezed through the secondary backing and, therefore, does not have the proper viscosity to prevent penetration through the fabric. Tillotson teaches that the adhesive has a "tendency" to be squeezed through the fabric, but only after two fabrics are compressed with pressure by a pair of laminating rollers. This high pressure laminating roller process would not be needed, nor desired in wallpaper. Tillotson is only relied upon to provide a teaching of the benefits of applying a hot melt resin adhesive to the crossover points of a fabric. Therefore, this disclosure refers to a process step not relied upon in the instant rejection. Moreover, the fact that Tillotson's adhesive only has a "tendency" to be squeezed through the fabric after such a high-pressure lamination shows that the adhesive does, in fact possess a viscosity, which resists penetration through the fabric.

Conclusion

4. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
